

Chapter 22	Assisting with specimens
acetone / ketone
glucosuria / glycosuria
hematuria
hemoptysis
sputum
what does occult mean?
when can an routine urine be done?
what type of urine specimen do you need to check for occult blood?
how much urine do you need for a routine / random urine specimen?
what is a specchat
what is a clean catch (midstream urine)?
Describe how you will collect a midstream urine why would we need to collect a midstream urine? What are we looking for?
how much urine is needed for a midstream urine?
what is a reagent strip?
what are reagent strips used for?
describe a 24 hour urine
what are the precautions for a 24 hour urine describe a double void specimen what is a double void used for?

when is the best time to collect a sputum specimen how much sputum do you need for a good specimen what are we looking for with sputum specimens?
how do you collect a stool specimen?
how much stool do you need for an adequate specimen what are we looking for in a stool specimen how is a stool specimen taking to the lab do you put all specimens in a biohazard bag?
do all specimens need to be labeled?
where do you attach the label?
do you have resident verify information on label?
what is a requisition?
do all lab specimens require a requisition?	